

Dear students affairs professionals, in-Training (in-training.org), the online peer-reviewed publication for medical students, is looking for medical students of all class years to submit articles and essays about their experiences in medicine for peer-edited online publication.

With an emphasis on humanism in medicine, in-Training is run entirely by medical students and serves as an outlet for budding physician-journalists and writers at all medical schools around the globe. We seek articles on any topic relevant to the medical student community, including reflections, opinions, policy, research, poetry and art. Please fill out our interest form at tinyurl.com/intraining if you are interested in contributing, and you can submit a writing piece at in-training.org/submit.

Since we went online in July 2012, we have published over 1,200 articles from 500 writers at 150 institutions in 15 countries. in-Training has been featured on NPR and Scientific American. We are also winners in the 2014 and 2015 Web Health Awards.

We invite students and faculty to visit in-Training at in-training.org and subscribe to our newsletter at in-training.org/newsletter. Please fill out our interest form at tinyurl.com/intraining or contact us at editorinchief@in-training.org if you are interested in writing or editing for in-Training.

Best,

Amelia and Nihaal

Editors-in-Chief of in-Training