

Healthcare Policy and Healthcare Services

George Till, M.D. Associate Professor

Dr. Till's research interests are in health care policy. His current project is regarding Vermont physician attitudes about single payer health care systems and physician assisted suicide. He is a Hospitalist with the responsibility of medical student and resident teaching and is also a member of the Vermont Legislature and the Vermont Health Care Reform Commission.

Marjorie C. Meyer, M.D. Associate Professor, Division Director and Fellowship Director for Maternal Fetal Medicine

Dr. Meyer's interests are medical complications of pregnancy and substance abuse during pregnancy. She has research projects in areas including pain during childbirth, medical therapy and outcomes of treatment of substance abuse during pregnancy.

Adam P. Buckley, M.D. Clinical Assistant Professor, Chief Information Officer for the University of Vermont Health Network

Dr. Buckley's primary research interests have been in medical education, the use of large patient databases, electronic medical records to enhance patient outcomes, and innovative ways to care for the obese parturient. His clinical interest is in gynecological ultrasound. Most recently, Dr. Buckley has become active in finding the ways in which information technology can be utilized to create and support an integrated healthcare delivery system.