

Explore a variety of career opportunities in healthcare with these exceptional programs offered through the UVM Larner College of Medicine, including our new End of Life Care Doula Professional Certificate:

Master of Public Health – Learn at your own pace from faculty with a broad range of expertise in healthcare sciences in this 42-credit, online graduate program focused on public health and policy issues with a strong foundation in health sciences.

Public Health Graduate Certificate – Delve into current public health and health policy issues while building a strong foundation in population health sciences, including epidemiology, biostatistics, and environmental health in this 18-credit, online program.

Environmental Health Graduate Certificate – Explore a range of human health hazards, health promotion strategies, and methods of environmental health practice in this online, 18-credit program focusing on the interaction between environmental factors and human health.

Epidemiology Graduate Certificate – Study the incidence, prevalence, and prevention of disease in this concise, 18-credit, online program introducing you to the foundations and language of public health.

Healthcare Management and Policy Graduate Certificate – In today's challenging and constantly-shifting healthcare environment, gain a solid foundation in a range of policy, finance, and management issues impacting healthcare and public health in this 18-credit, online certificate program.

Post-Baccalaureate Premedical Program – Emerge well-prepared for professional programs in this rigorous and customized 24-credit, one- or two-year program designed for students with a strong academic record but lacking the science courses required for admission to medical or other health-professional schools.

End of Life Care Doula Professional Certificate – UVM's new, eight-week, online program prepares you to meet the growing demand for end of life care, teaching you the skills to support the emotional, physical, informational, and spiritual needs of the dying, and promoting personalized, even positive, passages for your clients and their loved ones.

Please contact Katie Albee, Marketing Coordinator @ UVM CDE, with any questions.